

LANGLEY LATTON ATTWOOD was the only son of the late S. G. Attwood of London, and was born on February 26, 1893.

He entered Dryden in September 1906 and left school in July 1910.

When war broke out Attwood was in British Columbia, where he joined the 47th Battalion Canadian Infantry (Machine Gun Section). Later he transferred to the 1st Canadian Pioneers and went to France in April 1916.

He fought with the Canadians in their engagements until early in 1917, when he took a commission in the Royal Garrison Artillery and was killed in battle August 12, 1917.
