

WALTER LIONEL PAINE was the sixth son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Paine of Cotswold, Upper Norwood, where he was born on March 2, 1881.

From Mr. Mallinson's school at Dulwich he came on to Oundle, entering School House in 1894. Paine was captain of the school in 1899 and 1900, and stroked the crew for a time, until he unluckily broke down.

Leaving Oundle he went up to Sidney Sussex, Cambridge, where he had been awarded a Senior Classical Scholarship.

In 1903 he returned to the school as a member of the staff, and remained until 1909, though he spent one year at the Lycée d'Amiens; the latter part of this time he was Housemaster at Crosby. From Oundle he went to the Whitgift School, Croydon. As Secretary of the Association for the Reform of Latin Teaching he organized the Summer Schools at Bangor, Cambridge, and Durham. The last was postponed through the outbreak of war. Paine at once applied for a commission, but failing to get one, enlisted in the Grenadier Guards in September 1914. Early in December he was given his commission as Lieutenant in the King's Own Royal Lancasters and in January was promoted Captain and Adjutant. In May he went to Gallipoli, being attached to the 1st Lancashire Fusiliers and was killed leading his men in the advance of June 4, 1915.
